

Stage Set For Friday Night's Finale Of Football Season

By BOB GRUBB
Herald Sports Editor

The stage is set for the final act of the 1951 Circleville high school football season.

Scene of the final act will be Circleville's football field, with the curtain due to go up at 8 p. m. Friday.

Key players in the production will be lads from Circleville and Washington C. H. high schools, with prompting by Tiger Coach Steve Brudzinski and Blue Lion Coach Fred Pierson.

Circleville's Red and Black players studied their lines for the final act Tuesday evening with a skull practice, while knocking off the rough edges Wednesday evening with a full-scale scrimmage.

A dress rehearsal for the finale will be held by the Tigers Thursday night on the CHS gridiron, an under-the-lights session to ready them for Friday's play.

And, with any breaks from the weatherman, the Tigers of Circleville and the Blue Lions of Washington C. H. will be playing to a full house. The weatherman has predicted "fair and warmer" for Friday.

But no matter how well the players perform in their respective roles, at least half of the critics will be disappointed with the outcome of the final act.

Circleville will be seeking its sixth win in nine starts for this season Friday when it meets Washington. It also will be seeking its fourth consecutive South Central Ohio League championship banner.

Both teams are undefeated to date in SCOL play, each having scored victories over Wilmington, Greenfield and Hillsboro grid-ders this season.

Washington, however, has a season record of seven victories in eight starts to date, a record marred only by a 13-13 tie with Cincinnati Woodward grid-ders.

Circleville has lost one game this season, a 6-0 setback at the hands of Columbus Holy Rosary in the opener, and has tied twice, 7-7 by Columbus St. Charles and 0-0 in the snow last Friday against Westerville.

But for actual comparison of the two teams, local rooters dig down into performances in the SCOL loop.

Washington surprised many league followers early in the season when it collected a 13-7 victory over Greenfield McClain. After Washington had scored its win, Circleville came back later to post a 32-0 win over the Greenfielders.

Circleville met Wilmington's Hurricane first this season, posting an 18-6 victory. Washington met the Hurricane team later, earning a 31-8 win.

And Circleville was first to meet Hillsboro's Indians, shaking loose from a 7-7 halftime tie to earn a 37-7 win over the Indians. In a later game, Washington ran up a lopsided 72-6 victory over the Indians.

In comparing the two schools in view of SCOL competition, Washington's offense seems the more powerful, while the Tiger defensive is stronger.

In its three games, Washington has scored a total of 116 points against Wilmington, Hillsboro and Greenfield while the Tigers have tallied 87.

On the other hand, Circleville has allowed only 13 points to be scored against it in league competition while Washington has given up 21.

Circleville will have at least one psychological advantage over the invading Lions.

In their last 10 meetings, the Tigers have scored six victories, lost three. One game was tied.

Both teams will have strong offenses in play during the test—lack of sharp blocking, both in the line and downfield. But in view of the fact that nine Tiger grid-ders will be playing for the last time Friday night, that may be changed.

Playing their last high school football Friday night will be Ends Jim Cook and Charles Johnson; Tackle Bill Gillis; Guards John Cockrell and Lloyd Brannon; Quarterback Jerry Rooney; Halfbacks Jerry Pritchard and Paul Hill; and Fullback Dave Col-lard.

As a climax to their high school grid careers, these nine boys will be out to make the game their best.

Also ending his career with the team will be Manager Ronnie Seall.

Both Washington and Circleville bands are expected to be on hand for the halftime program.

Truman Denies Ike Bid

President Smiles At Support Offer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8—President Truman declared flatly today there is not a word of truth in a published report that he offered to support Gen. Eisenhower as a presidential candidate in 1952.

The President made the strong denial at Washington National Airport just before he took off this morning on a flight to Key West, Fla., where he will spend a five-week vacation.

As he prepared to board the presidential plane, Independence, Mr. Truman was asked by newsmen to comment on the story in the New York Times by the veteran Washington columnist, Arthur Krock.

The chief executive grinned and replied that there was not a word of truth in the article.

He said he would not have been surprised if the article had been written by Columnist Walter Winchell or Walter Trohan, Washington correspondent of the Chicago Tribune.

THE SIXTH U. N. GENERAL ASSEMBLY is opened by French President Vincent Auriol (bottom) as he addresses the delegates in Paris. At left (rear) is Secretary General Trygve Lie and at right is Nazimollah Entezam, of Iran, outgoing president of the United Nations. In his address, President Auriol extended an indirect invitation to Truman, Stalin and Churchill to come to Paris to discuss the world crisis.

THE TIMES' story said the President's offer, repeating a similar one that he had made to Eisenhower at the Potsdam conference in 1945 with respect to the 1948 election, came during Ike's visit to Washington last week.

Krock said Eisenhower "strongly implied rejection" of the offer.

Eisenhower has declared that domestic politics were not discussed in his conference to which he was summoned from Europe by the President. The White House in its announcement of the talks had said they would be limited to defense problems.

Krock wrote in Thursday's issue of the Times:

"General Eisenhower did not accept the new offer, which necessarily concerned only the Democratic nomination. He did not specifically reject it.

"But he strongly implied rejection by suggesting that great difficulties were presented by his fundamental disagreement with the administration on labor policies, proposed amendments to the Taft-Hartley Act and other policies and programs in the domestic field that have been sponsored by Mr. Truman."

Krock did not give the source of his report except to say that it came from "a person whom he believes to be thoroughly reliable and informed."

He said the exchange "presumably" took place at the leaders' private luncheon Monday (at Blair House), that it was brief and that the matter was left in status."

Krock long has been regarded as one of the most reliable and responsible correspondents on Capitol Hill.

UN Rejects Commie Plan To Halt Korea Fighting

MUNSAN, Nov. 8—United Nations representatives today slammed the door firmly shut against a Communist plan that would halt the fighting in Korea before a full armistice is concluded.

During nearly five hours of further talks at Panmunjom, the two UN delegates on a joint four-man subcommittee "completely rejected" an "ambiguous" Red proposal to set up a cease-fire line immediately.

This was announced by a spokesman who said the Allied negotiators urged the Communists to accept the principle of establishing a buffer zone based on the battle-front as it would exist at the time all other armistice issues are settled.

The subcommittee adjourned for the day after agreeing to reconvene for a 22nd session at 11

More Military Power Needed, Bradley Claims

CHICAGO, Nov. 8—Gen. Omar N. Bradley disclosed today that the Joint Chiefs of Staff have demanded greatly increased U. S. military forces to meet the "ever increasing" threat of atomic warfare.

Bradley stressed American atomic superiority, but he added:

"If an enemy wanted to disperse his forces so that soldiers walked one hundred yards apart, they could march across Europe tomorrow in the face of the greatest atomic power on earth—unless other men were there to stop them."

Although known to be optimistic on the chances of a Korean armistice, Bradley told the American Petroleum Institute that the Communists are making "fictitious overtures to peace" and that to base our strategy on these... would be more than foolhardy."

The chairman of the Joint Chiefs gave no figures, but his reference to enlarged forces apparently means the Pentagon plans to add a half million men to the Army, Navy and Air Force to bring them to a total strength of 3.9 million and to increase the Air Force from 95 to 138 groups.

'Be A Gapsal' Is Challenge Of Blood Program

Be a Gapsal!

"Give A Pint, Save A Life!"

That's what American Red Cross officials are asking of Pickaway County residents when the Red Cross Bloodmobile unit visits Monday at Circleville First Methodist church.

Pickaway County's blood quota has been set at 125 pints. Red Cross officials explained, and 160 blood donors will be needed to obtain this amount. The county has never yet achieved its quota.

The Bloodmobile unit will be stationed at the church from 11 a. m. to 5 p. m. on that day. Prospective donors may make appointments to give blood by calling Red Cross headquarters, South Court street, or by contacting Mrs. Tom Renick, East Main street.

Russia Laughs At Peace Plan Offered By America

DEFENSES TO BE PRESSED

Capital Is Not Surprised As Reds Scoff At Truman

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8—Official Washington today received without surprise Russia's scoffing rejection of President Truman's proposal for a "foolproof" peace-and-disarmament plan.

The counter-proposal laid before the United Nations by Soviet Foreign Minister Vishinsky, including a demand that UN forces stop fighting in Korea, brought no immediate comment from government leaders.

It was expected, however, that the administration, while continuing through diplomatic channels, would emphasize the necessity of speeding the free world's defense efforts.

Mr. Truman told the world in a radio-television address last night that the success of the peace program depends upon Russia. He said:

"All nations would have to lay their cards on the table and keep them there at all times."

The proposal envisages the balanced reduction of armed forces and weapons, including the atomic bomb, and provides for continuous United Nations inventory and inspection.

SPEAKING pointedly to Russia's leaders, the President said:

"I urge the Kremlin to accept the proposal.

"I urge them to make it known to the people of the Soviet Union."

Mr. Truman said that an end to the Korean war and settlement of all Cold War differences between the East and West are essential conditions for adoption of the disarmament plan.

He declared that the "key" to the U. S.-British-French blueprint for peace is "to find out exactly and precisely what arms and armed forces each country has."

The "common sense" plan to end the six-year Cold War between the free nations and the Communist bloc was drafted by the U. S. and backed by Britain and France.

The chief executive laid down three basic conditions for the world disarmament agreement:

"First, such a system must include all types of weapons.

"Second, it must be accepted by Charles Walters and Kenneth Blue have been named as members of the Circleville Township board of education by write-in votes.

Neither candidate was listed on the ballot, although both had held posts on the board formerly.

Circleville Township Blue and Walters; Darby Township, Troy McPherson and Earl Puckett; Deer-creek Township, John Dunlap Jr. and Joseph Wardell; Harrison Township, Roy Kreiger and Frank Baum; Ashville village, W. E. Es-sick and Richard Peters; JACKSON Township, Marvin Rhoads and Harry Kern; Madison Township, James Moody and Waldon Sherman; Monroe Township, James Willis, Raymond Reiterman; Muhlenberg Township, Ray Carpenter and Lillian Holt.

SAN ANTONIO, Nov. 8—Science has reached the point where it could send a rocket to the moon, but man still is the weakest link in the chain of factors necessary to make the feat possible.

That is the opinion expressed by top scientists among 400 experts on air travel attending a four-day International Symposium on Space at San Antonio.

Dr. Werner Von Braun, a guided missile expert who helped develop the famed V-2 rocket used by the Nazis in World War II, stated he is firmly convinced a rocket now can be produced capable of reaching the moon.

But Dr. Heinz Specht, of the National Institute of Health laboratory, said space fliers probably will have to carry along green plants to protect them from carbon dioxide they breathe into the air themselves.

New Price Lids Set Up By OPS On Mutton, Veal

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8—New and in most cases higher—retail price ceilings will go into effect Tuesday for lamb, mutton and veal.

Office of Price Stabilization officials said the exact amount of the increases will vary and there may even be some reductions.

The higher maximum prices are authorized in two orders issued by OPS. One establishes dollar-and-cents ceilings for wholesalers of lamb and mutton. A second permits retailers to recalculate their ceilings to reflect new wholesale prices.

Lamb and mutton make up about four per cent of the nation's meat diet. New York City alone consumes about half the total supply.

Veal represents about seven per cent of total meat consumption.

BUTCHERS WILL refigure their ceilings on veal, lamb and mutton each week.

If a retailer's costs increase from week to week, so will his ceilings. If costs go down, retail prices must follow suit.

Retail veal ceilings are expected to rise under such a formula because wholesale prices have gone up since the general price-wage freeze of last Jan. 25.

Mystery Bleeding Disease Stumps Medics In Korea

TOKYO, Nov. 8—The top medical officer of the United Nations command said today an investigation has been launched to learn the nature of a mystery "bleeding" disease "new to Western medicine" that has struck Allied soldiers in Korea.

The illness, characterized by a "pronounced tendency to hemorrhages" which affects the tissues under the skin, eyes and internal organs, is not curable by sulfa drugs or anti-biotics like penicillin and aureomycin.

Brig. Gen. William E. Shambora, newly-arrived chief surgeon of the Far East command, said the disease was thought to be the same illness which struck Japanese troops in Manchuria in 1939 and was called by their physicians "epidemic hemorrhagic fever."

Shambora said his medical officers were told by the Japanese that the "Manchurian fever" was caused by a filterable virus transmitted by the bite of a tiny insect called a mite, which lives in the skin of a field mouse.

Vishinsky Has Own Proposals

Korean Withdrawal Is Part Of Demand

PARIS, Nov. 8—Russia laughingly rejected today the American plan for a United Nations world census of atomic weapons and gradual disarmament under rigid supervision.

Soviet Foreign Minister Vishinsky laughed at U. S. Secretary of State Acheson's solemn speech in the UN General Assembly proposing that Russia prove it wants peace by ending the Korean war, and accepting the disarmament plan.

Instead, Vishinsky proposed his own "peace plan" which included a demand that UN forces quit fighting in Korea and withdraw their troops "within ten days" to the 38th Parallel.

The faces of many of the 1,000 delegates who heard Vishinsky's bitter tirade against the United States fell as they realized Russia intends to continue the Cold War and the arms race.

Vishinsky's bitter speech shocked non-Communist delegates. One summed it up by saying: "The chips are down; Stalin has spoken."

Acheson commented:

"The most impressive part of Vishinsky's statement was that 'facts are stubborn things.' Because Vishinsky wrestled with facts for nearly two hours—and lost."

"THEY PROPOSE," said a mocking Vishinsky of the President Truman-Acheson plan, "That we should busy ourselves in taking stock of an inventory under the inspiring guidance of the UN commission."

"Of course this is useful in every household—but is it a task for an international peace organization?" Vishinsky continued:

"I hardly slept last night for laughing over the tripartite declaration and the Truman speech. Time and again I awoke laughing."

Acheson had asked Russia to drop its "propaganda gestures, catchwords, and tricks" by taking action toward peace instead of using words, by giving an order to halt the bloodshed in Korea.

Otherwise, Acheson said, the Western nations would build up their strength so that no aggressor would dare attack them.

Vishinsky in his response glared at Acheson and said: "Let's ask Acheson is he for prohibition and control of the atom bomb, or just for control?"

The Soviet minister then offered his own "peace plan" whose points were:

Instead, Vishinsky pressed his own "peace plan" which included a demand that UN forces quit fighting in Korea and withdraw their troops "within ten days" to the 38th Parallel.

The faces of many of the 1,000 delegates who heard Vishinsky's bitter tirade against the United States fell as they realized Russia intends to continue the Cold War and the arms race.

Vishinsky's bitter speech shocked non-Communist delegates. One summed it up by saying: "The chips are down; Stalin has spoken."

Acheson commented:

"The most impressive part of Vishinsky's statement was that 'facts are stubborn things.' Because Vishinsky wrestled with facts for nearly two hours—and lost."

"THEY PROPOSE," said a mocking Vishinsky of the President Truman-Acheson plan, "that we should busy ourselves in taking stock of an inventory under the inspiring guidance of the UN commission."

"Of course this is useful, in every household—but is it a task for an international peace organization?"

Vishinsky continued:

"I hardly slept last night for laughing over the tripartite declaration and the Truman speech. Time and again I awoke laughing."

Acheson had asked Russia to drop its "propaganda gestures, catchwords, and tricks" by taking action toward peace instead of using words, by giving an order to halt the bloodshed in Korea.

Otherwise, Acheson said, the Western nations would build up their strength so that no aggressor would dare attack them.

Vishinsky in his response glared at Acheson and said: "Let's ask Acheson is he for prohibition and control of the atom bomb, or just for control?"

The Soviet minister then offered his own "peace plan" whose points were:

1. THE ASSEMBLY to declare that participation in "the aggressive North Atlantic bloc" established by the U. S. is incompatible

Louis Budenz, the international-known former editor of the Communist Daily Worker, advocates outlawing Communism in America. He says this drastic action is necessary to cope with the growing power of the Red Fifth Column in our country.

His opinions in this field merit the fullest consideration, for he knows Communism and its strategy probably better than any other non-Communist in America.

Since breaking with the Red conspiracy he has been the most powerful witness for our government in jailing certain known Communist leaders.

In a speech to our recent Harding College Freedom Forum, Budenz, now a professor at Fordham University, said that this jailing of these few leaders has actually hurt the Communist Fifth Column very little. The real power of the conspiracy, he said, lies in two groups—the alien Communists who still are flowing into this nation at the reported rate of 3,000 a year and who are coming direct from the high councils of the conspiracy in Europe and Asia; and the concealed American Communists who have wormed their way into places of great influence and are enjoying the utmost respect from fellow Americans.

"THE FIFTH COLUMN is powerful," he said, "not because of the picket line Communist who is traditional in American thinking; they are powerful because they are likewise composed of well-manicured gentlemen such as Alger Hiss and others who will come forward before the American people as time goes on. The Soviet Fifth Column in the United States, established for the purpose of destroying the American government in order to bring about a World Soviet Dictatorship, is organized like a tree.

"The roots of the tree are the illegal aliens sent here from Moscow in order to rule the conspiracy. They are the men and women like Gerhardt Eisler and J. Peters who are in charge of the espionage apparatus and directed the work of such agents as Whittaker Chambers.

"Out of these roots springs the open part, or the trunk of the tree, representing only five per cent of the conspiracy.

"It is composed of people like Foster (longtime head of the American Communist Party), Browder, and myself who were a member of the National Committee. Out of the trunk of the tree come the branches, the men and women who constitute the great problem and menace to America. They are the concealed members, who have worked themselves into positions of trust in education, the press, science, government, and who are as devoted to Stalin as any open Communist could be. These concealed Communists have 500,000 fellow travelers ready to do their bidding.

"The sap of instructions for the whole apparatus comes from the aliens underground, is passed up through the open party with its telephones and its newspapers, to give directives to the men and women in the branches. Over and over you can find the directives that have been given by the Kremlin agents underground being carried out by professors, scientists and others rallying to some new Soviet peace crusade which in reality is a move for the advancement of aggression by Stalin."

MUCH OF THE money to finance the above-ground operations of the Communist conspiracy has come, said Professor Budenz, from Hollywood—"from the directors, writers, and actors who were of the Red persuasion. But do not misunderstand me: This does not indicate that the majority of Hollywood people (or of the scientists and educators, etc.) are in any way connected with Communism. Indeed it is a very small minority that is. But it is a militant minority, an aggressive minority, a concealed minority, and it gets its way too much for the comfort and security of the American nation.

"If we cut the trunk, by outlawing the Communist Party, we cut off the communications between the underground alien apparatus, and the men and women in the branches who are occupying these strategic positions in the motion picture world, radio, education, the press, science and the like. That is the first essential. The next step then should be the birth of a great new citizenship among all Americans—a citizenship that will learn the true facts and will then hammer at the doors of Congress, of the State Department and wherever it can be heard in democratic fashion—demanding action against Soviet aggression and the Soviets

Editor's note: There was nothing new in this Soviet stand. Russia always has talked of "international control," but has balked at rigid international inspection to enforce such a control.

The assembly, Vishinsky said, should order that a "world conference" convene within the shortest possible time, not later than June 1, 1952.

4. The assembly to call on the "Big Five" to conclude a peace pact, combining their efforts toward "this lofty generous task." To call all neutrals and other states to adhere to such a pact. (By Big Five Vishinsky meant inclusion of Communist China.)

"NEITHER Acheson nor Truman," said Vishinsky, "would move a finger to halt atom production. In a cowardly manner they shy away from that."

Vishinsky said "the United States and Britain are heading a bloc waging aggressive warfare in Korea for the last two years."

"If need be we will show evidence that the United States is guilty of wrecking the Kaesong (Korean armistice) negotiations, and bombing neutral areas."

"Can there be any doubt that American generals—the MacArthurs, Ridgways and their Washington protectors—wrecked all attempts at successful negotiations?"

Acheson, moving to implement President Truman's peace program, had told the Soviet Union that instead of merely talking peace and calling for five-power pacts the Kremlin should join the free world in the "sixty-page peace pact" which is embodied in the UN charter.

The secretary of state outlined the six major areas where the "Soviet Union could demonstrate its desire for peace—in action instead of words—if it chooses to do so."

These were:

1. End the war in Korea and establish peace in the Far East.

2. Unification of Germany along democratic lines.

3. Cooperate in an Austrian peace treaty.

4. Allow admission of Italy to the United Nations.

5. Respect human rights behind the Iron Curtain.

6. End fifth column and subversive activities and threats such as used against Yugoslavia and Indo-China.

New Williamsport Mayor Is W. B. Not C. F. Johnson

In Wednesday's issue of The Circleville Herald it was incorrectly reported that William B. Johnson had been reelected mayor of Williamsport.

Actually, William B. Johnson was elected mayor of the village to replace Mayor Charles F. Johnson, who did not choose to seek the office this year.

Charles F. Johnson was appointed mayor of the village one year to serve an unexpired term caused by a resignation, then was elected for one term.

William B. Johnson, the new mayor-elect, is a salesman for the National Biscuit Co. in the county. Mayor Johnson and Mayor-elect Johnson are not related.

Mother Claims Local Teacher Strikes Pupil

A Circleville school teacher is to appear in the court of Magistrate Oscar Root at 10 a. m. Tuesday on an accusation of assault and battery filed by the mother of a 16-year-old school boy.

He is Richard (Dick) West, high school basketball coach, who is accused of having struck 16-year-old David Lee Greeno Wednesday.

West appeared in the court early Thursday and entered a plea of innocent to the accusation, which was filed by the lad's mother, Mrs. Marvene Greeno Styers. West was released on $200 bond to appear in the court again at 10 a. m. Tuesday.

The accusation filed by Mrs. Styers accuses the teacher of having struck the youngster with his fist, causing a head laceration.

WEST was quoted as saying the action happened during a physical education class, that the move was a disciplinary and that "I didn't strike him with my fist."

Greeno was taken to Berger hospital following the incident, where reported no treatment necessary.

Construction Workers Swell Idle Pay List

Completion of several construction jobs in the Pickaway County area plus the surge of winter weather, which kept some outdoor laborers idle, accounted for 51 new claimants for unemployment compensation, the local office reported Thursday.

A total of 61 old claimants, those who had filed previously brought the county total to 112.

This compares to only 18 new claimants for the week ending Oct. 27.

"It's a seasonal jump," explained C. C. Thomas, State Employment Service manager here. "Another spell of milder weather would lessen the number of claimants."

Heaviest unemployment claimant figure in recent weeks was 169 which filed for the week ending Oct. 27. A brief lay-off at the General Electric plant accounted for this increase, Thomas said.

In Wednesday's issue of The Circleville Herald it was incorrectly reported that William B. Johnson had been reelected mayor of Williamsport.

Actually, William B. Johnson was elected mayor of the village to replace Mayor Charles F. Johnson, who did not choose to seek the office this year.

Charles F. Johnson was appointed mayor of the village one year to serve an unexpired term caused by a resignation, then was elected for one term.

William B. Johnson, the new mayor-elect, is a salesman for the National Biscuit Co. in the county. Mayor Johnson and Mayor-elect Johnson are not related.

Mother Claims Local Teacher Strikes Pupil

A Circleville school teacher is to appear in the court of Magistrate Oscar Root at 10 a. m. Tuesday on an accusation of assault and battery filed by the mother of a 16-year-old school boy.

He is Richard (Dick) West, high school basketball coach, who is accused of having struck 16-year-old David Lee Greeno Wednesday.

West appeared in the court early Thursday and entered a plea of innocent to the accusation, which was filed by the lad's mother, Mrs. Marvane Greeno Stiers. West was released on $200 bond to appear in the court again at 10 a. m. Tuesday.

The accusation filed by Mrs. Stiers accuses the teacher of having struck the youngster with his fist, causing a head laceration.

WEST was quoted as saying the action happened during a physical education class, that the move was a disciplinary and that "I didn't strike him with my fist."

Greeno was taken to Berger hospital following the incident, where he was referred to a physician, who reported no treatment necessary.

Construction Workers Swell Idle Pay List

Completion of several construction jobs in the Pickaway County area plus the surge of winter weather, which kept some outdoor laborers idle, accounted for 51 new claimants for unemployment compensation, the local office reported Thursday.

A total of 61 old claimants, those who had filed previously brought the county total to 112.

This compares to only 18 new claimants for the week ending Oct. 27.

"It's a seasonal jump," explained C. C. Thomas, State Employment Service manager here. "Another spell of milder weather would lessen the number of claimants."

Heaviest unemployment claimant figure in recent weeks was 169 which filed for the week ending Oct. 27. A brief lay-off at the General Electric plant accounted for this increase, Thomas said.

mother, Mrs. Pansy Disbennett and then will return to Europe.

Mrs. Elizabeth Edwards spent several days last week with her children in Columbus.

Miss Maud Mettler spent Friday and Saturday with Mr. and Mrs. John Haubel of near Chillicothe.

Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Barclay and daughter Mary and Bethel were Tuesday guests of Mrs. Victoria Barclay and Mr. and Mrs. Philip Swackhamer.

More Rebuttal Testimony Due In Phillips Trial

COLUMBUS, Nov. 8.—The prosecution promised for today more rebuttal testimony in the second degree murder trial of George Phillips along yesterday's lines which struck at the core of the defense.

Prosecutor Ralph J. Bartlett called to the stand yesterday Dr. Anson L. Brown, Columbus blood expert, who conducted three tests on a shirt identified as belonging to Phillips. After each, Anson said they indicated "positive for blood."

It was the same shirt on which the defense expert, Dr. Horace B. Davidson, also of Columbus, said he had examined for spots to test, had found none and had not tested chemically.

Bartlett also called up two witnesses who knew the defendant and who testified that the one-arm insurance salesman did not shave off his mustache "the middle of April" as he said and also that he had a brief case at that time.

They were Mr. and Mrs. James E. Smith of Columbus, who told the jury they were with Phillips three days before the murder of Mrs. Ruth Alter when he telephoned the Alter home to make an appointment to sell insurance for the Alter baby.

They said Phillips then had the brief case which has been submitted as evidence. Phillips has denied ownership of the case.

Yank Sergeant Backs Education For Jap Youth

OSAKA, Nov. 8.—The thoughtfulness of an Army sergeant this week made possible the further education in the United States of a Japanese youth who for the next four years will be a student at Bob Jones university, Greenville, S. C.

Sgt. Hugh F. X. O'Reilly of Bronx, N. Y., assigned to headquarters southwestern command, saw a recent story in an English-language newspaper which related the plight of 21-year-old Jiro Anzai. The Sakai City Christian Japanese youth had received a scholarship to the university but lacked an American sponsor.

O'Reilly, through a Japanese reporter, agreed to act as guarantor for Anzai and completed the necessary affidavits with the American consulate-general for Anzai's entry and residence in the United States. Anzai will sail for America aboard the President Wilson Dec. 26.

Well-known in Osaka for his record in promoting good will between Japan and the United States, Sergeant O'Reilly was the instigator of the 27th Infantry (Wolf Hounds) Regiment's sponsorship of the Osaka Holy Family Orphanage. To date the orphanage has received more than 29 million yen from the men of the regiment.

Anzai is the second son of the well-known poet, Fuyue Anzai, who received an award for his contributions to the literary world last Sunday, observed in Japan as Culture Day.

Lockbourne Deals May Bring Suits

Three Pickaway County landowners are expected to ask federal court in Columbus for more money for their properties in the future in connection with condemnation by the U. S. government.

The government has taken the deeds of the three Pickaway County tracts and of two Franklin County plots in its expansion of Lockbourne Air Force Base by "right of eminent domain."

Although it is in possession of the land, however, the question of how much the landowners are to be paid for it will be decided later.

In all, the government annexed 438.73 acres in Pickaway and Franklin Counties in the case, offering the owners a grand total of $115,270.

Feeling the offered amount insufficient, however, the landowners have given up their property deeds but have appealed for further considerations.

INVOLVED in the action from Pickaway County are Margaret Zimmerman, Harry C. Baum and George K. Wright.

The Zimmerman property, a 154-acre tract, received a government bid of $49,500; the Baum land, 72.14 acres, received an offer of $16,500; and the Wright land, 159.39 acres, was offered a maximum of $36,570.

Involved in the issue from Franklin County are a 41-acre tract owned by Homer Peters and Helen Angell, for which the U. S. has offered $8,200; and a 15.2-acre plot for which the government has bid $4,500.

Child Problems and Solutions

By GARRY CLEVELAND MYERS, PhD

From the readers of this column I receive in the course of a year about 20,000 letters. Among the last 20,000, only four condemned my advice on selective spanking. Nearly a thousand warmly approved.

Here is one of the four condemning letters:

"My Dear Dr. Myers: I hate to see your theories of child rearing given the sanction of appearing in print.

"So many people feel justified in their unforgivable application of physical punishment because they read that an authority advocates it. I find that the people who spank their children are those who have least control over those children and most certainly over themselves.

"How, Dr. Myers, can a parent teach his child patience or goodness, self-control or kindness when by his own action he manifests their opposites? My family and that of my husband have not resorted to 'spanking' and we are not using it on our small son, who seems marvelously well-behaved when compared with some less fortunate neighborhood children whose home is ruled by the rod. I like to think of many well-disciplined homes in our land in which children learn by example and not by force."

THE FOLLOWING is my personal reply: You say that neither you nor your husband ever was spanked, and I have no doubt that you both are lovely persons and fine citizens. It is possible, however, that a few spankings you each had in your very early years have been forgotten. Granting that you and some other fine folks were never spanked, it's hard to imagine you never were subjected in your early childhood to any physical pain whatsoever—never held or isolated by force or tied or "slapped down" or ever shrieked at occasionally.

However, I would have great respect for the parent who, never having resorted to force, has educated his child to exercise good safety habits, wholesome respect for the rights and feelings of others, due regard for constituted authority and good self-control; educated him to become a self-reliant, responsible and likable person. But I'm still waiting to see him and his child at the age of 5, 8 or 15.

If you have read my column daily for several months, you know that I put self-control by the parent first; next to it a thoughtful, beforehand purpose agreement between the parents on just the few acts for which the youngster will be spanked and consistency of each parent.

I name only a few spankable situations but many more that are not. I show how spanking may well be abandoned when the child is 3 or 4, displaced by effective substitutes.

My constant purpose is a foundation for the child's self-control with as little annoyance to all concerned as possible; to help the child escape shriekings and jawings; to clear away vexations between child and parent so they can enjoy each other with a maximum of mutual affection and endearments.

The high spots of my advice on discipline appear in my bulletins, "How Teach Tot Meaning of NO," and "Stubbornness" (to be had in a stamped envelope sent me in care of this paper). Moreover, Mrs. Myers and I have a chapter on "Positive Factors in Control" in our recent book, "Homes Build Persons," which you probably can find in your public library.

Answering Parents' Questions

Q. Our daughter was promoted to the fifth grade "on condition," which means that she will enter this grade when school begins with the understanding that if she does well enough she can remain in it, but be demoted to the fourth grade if she doesn't. We have been warning her that she must work hard but she doesn't seem to be much concerned about the matter.

A. No doubt she has worried a great deal but has put on the cloak of indifference in order to ward off your soundings. Please don't mention the matter again. Help her enter school hopefully and happily. Help her at her lessons if you can always keep calm; otherwise hire a person to help her, especially during the first several weeks.

Three Groups Exempted From OSU Gag Rule

COLUMBUS, Nov. 8.—Three distinct groups today are exempt from the screening rule at Ohio State university.

In an interpretation of the controversial order of the board of trustees which requires prospective speakers on the campus to be approved by the university president, President Howard L. Bevis listed as exempt:

- 1—Speakers invited by a faculty member to appear before his class who will make a proper contribution to class work.
- 2—Heads of the several religious foundations recognized by the university and serving the students.
- 3—Speakers of off-campus organizations recognized by the university. In this case, the organization must assume sole responsibility for the selection of the speakers.

Further discussion of the gag rule by the board of trustees and a seven-man faculty committee is slated for Nov. 16.

The Ohio State university chapter of the American Association of University Professors is expected to make public resolutions formed yesterday on the controversial ruling.

The group withheld announcement of the resolutions until after the announcement by Bevis.

POOR MAN'S TELEGRAM
THE penny postal card—the poor man's telegram—will double in cost January 1 under new postal rates to go into effect at that time. The increases are expected to bring an increase in revenue of $117 million annually, or about one-half of the increase in pay just given postmasters and postal workers.

The penny postal card has been an American tradition, affording an effective and cheap method of communication. It held its place in the postal system during all the years of expansion, which brought special delivery, air mail and all the other modern features. Now it is to pass into history.

Here is another sign of the inflation which has become general in the nation's economy. Everything is going up in cost. Take liver. Once upon a time the butcher threw in a generous portion for the cat. Now liver sells for as much as $2 a pound.

No longer does the buyer of a suit get a free pair of suspenders, which was the practice in the old days. Nothing is either free or cheap any more. Of course there is the argument that people are better able to pay two cents for a postal card now than they formerly were to pay half that price. And liver, it is said, tastes better at $2 a pound than it did at 10 cents.

The people have the money, the government has paper to print more, so what's the difference?

POLL SEASON OPENS
THE season for political polls is starting early. From now until November of next year there will be an endless number of surveys designed to forecast the results of the presidential election.

First to be announced was one conducted by the Country Gentleman magazine, with the results printed in the current edition. Field correspondents in 23 states made a spot check, with the result that 71 per cent of rural residents polled said they would not vote for President Truman if he is a candidate for reelection. The usual 7 per cent were undecided.

The farm vote was generally regarded as playing a decisive role in President Truman's victory in 1948. Certainly his chances would be dealt a fatal blow if 71 per cent of the farm vote went against him next year. A large percentage of those polled said they were certain he would run again.

Senator Taft and General Eisenhower were mentioned most often as choices for the Republican nomination in the poll, followed by General MacArthur, Dewey, Warren and Stassen.

Meanwhile Secretary of Agriculture Brannan is making overtures to the farm vote, and will offer a program which he says will insure greater returns for both agriculture and livestock industries, indicating there is concern in administration circles over the situation.

Current Congress Used Up
About 21 Million Words!

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—Is Congress getting more loquacious? Senator Matthew Neely (D), West Virginia, has had some sage words to say about the verbosity of his colleagues in the first session of the 82nd Congress ended Oct. 20.

Neely caustically remarked that the senators used 11,780,000 words during the almost 10-month-old session. He compared this with the 773,692 words found in the Holy Scriptures.

However, a little research work and a comparison of the records disclosed that Congress is not getting more loquacious at all. It is just that it has been loquacious all the time!

The survey bears out the suspicion that congressmen, including senators, talk just about the same year in and year out, the longer the session, the greater the wordage.

A comparison of the records of the first session of the 82nd Congress and the first session of the 81st Congress tends to confirm this. Both sessions began Jan. 3 and both ended in October within a day of each other.

During each session, members spoke approximately 21 million words, filling approximately 15,000 pages of the official Congressional Record. The cost? Approximately $1,250,000!

Let us dissect the record of the session which just ended. The 96 senators spoke approximately 11,780,000 words, the 435 representatives 9,118,284, for a total wordage of some 20,898,000!

Senator Matthew Neely

George E. Sokolsky's
These Days

Few men have been driven into as awkward a situation by friends and supporters as General Eisenhower. His present work of global defense against Communism is so important that anything that interferes with or hinders that runs counter to his life and apparent ambitions.

But his friends are pushing him too hard. They are forcing upon him alternatives he ought not now, in his present situation, to be made to face, namely that he run as a candidate for the presidency in the Republican Party, which he cannot do unless he resigns the supreme command of NATO. Eisenhower must make a success of NATO or his career becomes meaningless. It is not good enough to suggest that France and other countries are failing to do their job and that therefore he might abandon NATO. He must build his forces or the American program of relations with Russia and Europe must be entirely revised.

The situation in which Winston Churchill finds himself is that he must restore to Great Britain the trading position in international affairs which the Socialists lost. Churchill will seek a way to peace, which for Great Britain means the role as middleman between the United States and Soviet Russia.

There is no telling what that will do to NATO. Eisenhower may find that he is not the supreme commander of an international army but the commander of a small American force stationed in the outpost of Western Europe. In that case, his present role would be seriously reduced if not vitiated.

There is a menace in this situation to the United States, namely that Churchill and Harry Truman will enter into a competition for what they will politically call, peace. Programs for disarmament and for peace are always popular, particularly after periods of war and during periods of high taxes due to past wars and in preparation for future wars.

Therefore such a competition between Churchill and Truman in the interest of peace will make considerable headway in both countries. The menace is that such a program may be nothing but an appeasement of Stalin. It may result in a recognition of Stalin's aims in Asia and give him a victor's position with the masses of Europe. To the victor goes the spoils. In Europe, certainly the prestige of victory would go to Stalin.

This may be the only solution for a very difficult situation and it will need study as it proceeds. But this article can deal only with one phase of the problem, namely, the emergence of Churchill as leader of Western Europe and the inevitable reduction of the importance of Eisenhower's position as supreme commander of NATO.

As the situation grows increasingly political rather than military, the British premier rather than the American soldier will take first place. The British program of trade rather than the American program of containment will prevail.

CHAPTER FIFTEEN
AT THIS particular spot where Mollie and Nicholas were trying to cross the street, it could take as long as five minutes to find a gap in the evening traffic.

"From the first mention of his name," she said crossly, "you began to hold against Peter whatever it was that you had against his father."

"And that wasn't fair!"

"She ignored the mockery in his tone. "Darned right, it wasn't fair. Peter's a nice kid. There's an innocence and naivete about him."

"Oh, my!"

"But there is, Nicholas. And it's not something to laugh at."

"I guess you're right, darling. Here's the mayor's limousine. If that hits us—"

"I know. We'll get a municipal funeral." She was laughing when they reached the "island." Here they need wait only on the light.

"But in a grown man, Mollie," Nicholas continued, as if there had been no break. "How old is this boy of yours?"

"He's twenty-seven. Why don't you wear gloves?"

"Hm-mm, a bit older than I thought. But that makes his naivete a bit more nauseating, too."

"It isn't nauseating. It's—well—rather wonderful, in the world of today. He likes everybody and expects them to like him."

"Don't they?"

"You don't."

"Well, that would scarcely blight anyone's life. Here we go—I left my gloves at your house."

"You did not. I'd have found them."

He studied her face. "Hazel found them. Tell me more about Peter and his need for help. Though it's obvious he doesn't need it, with you on his side."

"I haven't done anything but help him get out of Clara Wayne's house."

"Did she object to his moving?"

"Of course not. But—"

She broke off abruptly, and resisted Nicholas' hand urging her along. She was looking over her shoulder at the two tall young people who stood in the shadow of the hotel entrance canopy. "Were they quarreling?" she asked, her voice troubled.

"It looked more like she was threatening him. Risky business—Ragsdale's definitely p.n."

"Oh, Nicholas."

He nodded. "He sure is. Haven't you suspected it?"

"I only know him in the hospital—he's very good."

"No sign of disbalance? There could be—it's bad business for a very good doctor to have a wife like that."

Mollie stopped again to turn and look back at the white-faced young people still talking as if they were alone on the busy boulevard.

"What kind of wife do you mean, Nicholas?"

His answer was rough. "Two-timing" was his gentlest epithet.

"You mean he's dangerous?"

"I mean your friend Clara is storing dynamite on her first floor."

"I wonder if she knows it. Peter says she won't talk about the Ragsdales."

"Can't we leave Peter out of anything?"

"I'm sorry," said Mollie, resuming her way along the sidewalk.

"You know, I suppose," said Nicholas, after an interval during which his eyes again searched her face, "that if Clara has a down on Peter, she could extend it to you?"

"I can handle any down Clara may have against me," Mollie spoke stiffly.

"Mm-mm. Do you feel that moving Shepherd into an apartment is all he needs to fix him up?"

"I wish you knew him, Nicholas."

"I do know him."

"He's a very nice chap."

"So I've heard other women say."

"But, don't you see? That's what I mean. He has every one of the qualities to put him on the spot in a big organization like the Group. He's good-looking, he has charm and genuine medical ability."

"Then why do you think he could use help from me?"

"Want! He does not have the suspicious, mean nature necessary to detect and fight the jealousy that is rampant in a big hospital."

"And do you know what?" asked Nicholas.

"That you don't care. But, Nicholas—"

"Don't put words into my mouth, woman! I was going to say that your Peter-boy is due to learn the things he needs."

"No, sir!" she said crisply. "You're not going to do your old job of belittling Peter to me."

"What in the devil are you talking about?"

Mollie was angry and too close to tears to be comfortable. She had quarreled with Nicholas before, but never had known this crosswise feeling of irritation, of compulsion to say all the wrong things—

"You make fun of everything that is simple and—well, I like Peter Shepherd, and I mean to help him if I can."

"I truly hope you don't get caught in the revolving door."

"I won't. And he does need a little interest."

"Is that why you think you're in love with him?"

"That was your idea."

"Yes," he agreed, after a second's thought. "It was. But, you know? I wouldn't have said Shepherd was a man to pick the maternal type of woman, Mollie. Not from the girls I've seen him around with."

"His eyes watched her alertly. "Present company excepted..." he added softly.

"I suppose you mean to be especially nasty!"

"Yes, indeed! As nasty as I am able! But tell me, if you know, how does Peter feel about your managing his affairs?"

"I'm not..."

"You've been furnishing an apartment for him, down to the cat on the rug! If he asked you to do all that, he's using you. If he didn't—"

Mollie stopped dead to stare at him. He grinned with delight and seized her arm. "Thank you, Mollie! I feel much better now. And while I do, let's get across this street. What's going on here, anyway? A parade?"

"Yes. They have one every evening at this time. Look, Nicholas..."

"Can't I'm watching traffic."

She looked at him in despair. "Please, Nicholas... Let me tell you this one example of the sort of thing that Peter runs into, so you'll see— Do you know Dr. Butcher?"

"Yes. He should change his name. It's a handicap."

"Oh, Nicholas, listen to me!"

"I'm listening, Mollie. Only why should Butcher get into this?"

"You know he's allowed Group courtesy?"

"He shouldn't be. His name is a handicap because it fits." He grabbed Mollie's arm, and raced her across the avenue. "What's he done now?"

Mollie stood where she was on the curb. "Either you shut up and listen to me, or go home that way!" Her finger pointed toward the Park.

"O. K., I choose to listen."

Nicholas stood waiting, puffing on his pipe, relaxed, half-smiling, his eyes on her face. She drew a deep breath.

OPINION

Faith in our currency has been reaffirmed by the CIO high command. Although the dollar isn't worth much, the boys have agreed to take as many more of them as they can get.

The administration warned that bigger slices of the nation's economic pie would lead to inflation indigestion, but the CIO cafeteria doesn't have a "no more pie" sign in stock.

And as anyone knows the cafeteria that does the biggest business is the one with the "plenty of fresh pie" sign in the window.

And as everyone also knows there is nothing more unexciting than a promise to keep wages at status quo.

Given a choice between a candidate for union leadership who says "we will keep wages at their present level so as not to upset the nation's economy" and one who says "boys this is only the beginning... we're shooting for the real dough!" who do you think the dues-payers would elect?

And he'd keep saying it if he wanted to stay in office.

POOR MAN'S TELEGRAM

THE penny postal card—the poor man's telegram—will double in cost January 1 under new postal rates to go into effect at that time. The increases are expected to bring an increase in revenue of $117 million annually, or about one-half of the increase in pay just given postmasters and postal workers.

The penny postal card has been an American tradition, affording an effective and cheap method of communication. It held its place in the postal system during all the years of expansion, which brought special delivery, air mail and all the other modern features. Now it is to pass into history.

Here is another sign of the inflation which has become general in the nation's economy. Everything is going up in cost. Take liver. Once upon a time the butcher threw in a generous portion for the cat. Now liver sells for as much as $2 a pound.

No longer does the buyer of a suit get a free pair of suspenders, which was the practice in the old days. Nothing is either free or cheap any more. Of course there is the argument that people are better able to pay two cents for a postal card now than they formerly were to pay half that price. And liver, it is said, tastes better at $2 a pound than it did at 10 cents.

The people have the money, the government has paper to print more, so what's the difference?

POLL SEASON OPENS

THE season for political polls is starting early. From now until November of next year there will be an endless number of surveys designed to forecast the results of the presidential election.

First to be announced was one conducted by the Country Gentleman magazine, with the results printed in the current edition. Field correspondents in 23 states made a spot check, with the result that 71 per cent of rural residents polled said they would not vote for President Truman if he is a candidate for reelection. The usual 7 per cent were undecided.

The farm vote was generally regarded as playing a decisive role in President Truman's victory in 1948. Certainly his chances would be dealt a fatal blow if 71 per cent of the farm vote went against him next year. A large percentage of those polled said they were certain he would run again.

Senator Taft and General Eisenhower were mentioned most often as choices for the Republican nomination in the poll, followed by General MacArthur, Dewey, Warren and Stassen.

Meanwhile Secretary of Agriculture Brannan is making overtures to the farm vote, and will offer a program which he says will insure greater returns for both agriculture and livestock industries, indicating there is concern in administration circles over the situation.

George E. Sokolsky's

Few men have been driven into as awkward a situation by friends and supporters as General Eisenhower. His present work of global defense against Communism is so important that anything that interferes with or hinders that runs counter to his life and apparent ambitions.

But his friends are pushing him too hard. They are forcing upon him alternatives he ought not now, in his present situation, to be made to face, namely that he run as a candidate for the presidency in the Republican Party, which he cannot do unless he resigns the supreme command of NATO. Eisenhower must make a success of NATO or his career becomes meaningless. It is not good enough to suggest that France and other countries are failing to do their job and that therefore he might abandon NATO. He must build his forces or the American program of relations with Russia and Europe must be entirely revised.

The situation in which Winston Churchill finds himself is that he must restore to Great Britain the trading position in international affairs which the Socialists lost. Churchill will seek a way to peace, which for Great Britain means the role as middleman between the United States and Soviet Russia.

There is no telling what that will do to NATO. Eisenhower may find that he is not the supreme commander of an international army but the commander of a small American force stationed in the outpost of Western Europe. In that case, his present role would be seriously reduced if not vitiated.

There is a menace in this situation to the United States, namely that Churchill and Harry Truman will enter into a competition for what they will politically call, peace. Programs for disarmament and for peace are always popular, particularly after periods of war and during periods of high taxes due to past wars and in preparation for future wars.

Therefore such a competition between Churchill and Truman in the interest of peace will make considerable headway in both countries. The menace is that such a program may be nothing but an appeasement of Stalin. It may result in a recognition of Stalin's aims in Asia and give him a victor's position with the masses of Europe. To the victor goes the spoils. In Europe, certainly the prestige of victory would go to Stalin.

This may be the only solution for a very difficult situation and it will need study as it proceeds. But this article can deal only with one phase of the problem, namely, the emergence of Churchill as leader of Western Europe and the inevitable reduction of the importance of Eisenhower's position as supreme commander of NATO.

As the situation grows increasingly political rather than military, the British premier rather than the American soldier will take first place. The British program of trade rather than the American program of containment will prevail.

CHAPTER FIFTEEN

AT THIS particular spot where Mollie and Nicholas were trying to cross the street, it could take as long as five minutes to find a gap in the evening traffic.

"From the first mention of his name," she said crossly, "you began to hold against Peter whatever it was that you had against his father."

"And that wasn't fair!" She ignored the mockery in his tone. "Darned right, it wasn't fair! Peter's a nice kid. There's an innocence and naivete about him."

"Oh, my!" "But there is, Nicholas. And it's not something to laugh at."

"I guess you're right, darling. Here's the mayor's limousine. If that hits us—"

"I know. We'll get a municipal funeral." She was laughing when they reached the "island." Here they need wait only on the light.

"But in a grown man, Mollie," Nicholas continued, as if there had been no break. "How old is this boy of yours?"

"He's twenty-seven. Why don't you wear gloves?"

"Hm-mm, a bit older than I thought. But that makes his naivete a bit more nauseating, too."

"It isn't nauseating. It's—well—rather wonderful, in the world of today. He likes everybody and expects them to like him."

"Don't they?" "You don't."

"Well, that would scarcely blight anyone's life. Here we go—I left my gloves at your house."

"I haven't done anything but help him get out of Clara Wayne's house."

"Did she object to his moving?" "Of course not. But—"

She broke off abruptly, and resisted Nicholas' hand urging her along. She was looking over her shoulder at the two tall young people who stood in the shadow of the hotel entrance canopy. "Were they quarreling?" she asked, her voice troubled.

"It looked more like she was threatening him. Risky business—Ragsdale's definitely p.n."

"Oh, Nicholas!" He nodded. "He sure is. Haven't you suspected it?"

"I only know him in the hospital—he's very good."

"No sign of disbalance? There could be—it's had business for a very good doctor to have a wife like that."

Mollie stopped again to turn and look back at the white-faced young people still talking as if they were alone on the busy boulevard.

"What kind of wife do you mean, Nicholas?" His answer was rough. "Timing" was his gentlest epithet.

"You mean he's dangerous?" "I mean your friend Clara is storing dynamite on her first floor."

"I wonder if she knows it. Peter says she won't talk about the Ragsdales."

"Can't we leave Peter out of anything?" "I'm sorry," said Mollie, resuming her way along the sidewalk.

"You know, I suppose," said Nicholas, after an interval during which his eyes again searched her face, "that if Clara has a down on Peter, she could extend it to you?"

"I can handle any down Clara may have against me," Mollie spoke stiffly.

"Mm-mm. Do you feel that moving Shepherd into an apartment is all he needs to fix him up?"

"I wish you knew him, Nicholas."

"I do know him."

"So I've heard other women say."

"But, don't you see? That's what I mean. He has every one of the qualities to put him on the spot in a big organization like the Group. He's good-looking, he has charm and genuine medical ability."

"Then why you think he could use help from me—"

"Wait! He does not have the suspicious, mean nature necessary to detect and fight the jealousy that is rampant in a big hospital."

"And do you know what?" asked Nicholas.

"That you don't care. But, Nicholas..."

"Don't put words into my mouth, woman! I was going to say that your Peter-boy is due to learn the things he needs."

"No, sir!" she said crisply. "You're not going to do your old job of belittling Peter to me."

"What in the devil are you talking about?"

Mollie was angry and too close to tears to be comfortable. She had quarreled with Nicholas before, but never had known this crosswise feeling of irritation, of compulsion to say all the wrong things—

"You make fun of everything that is simple and—well, I like Peter Shepherd, and I mean to help him if I can."

His eyes watched her alertly. "Present company excepted..." he added softly.

"I suppose you mean to be especially nasty!"

"Yes, indeed! As nasty as I am able! But tell me, if you know, how does Peter feel about your managing his affairs?"

"I'm not..."

Inside WASHINGTON

Congress 'Out-Talks' Bible
28 Times in One Session!

Current Congress Used Up
About 21 Million Words!

Special to Central Press
WASHINGTON—Is Congress getting more loquacious? Senator Matthew Neely (D), West Virginia, has had some sage words to say about the verbosity of his colleagues in the first session of the 82nd Congress ended Oct. 20.

Neely caustically remarked that the senators used 11,780,000 words during the almost 10-month-old session. He compared this with the 773,692 words found in the Holy Scriptures.

However, a little research work and a comparison of the records disclosed that Congress is not getting more loquacious, it is just that it has been loquacious all the time!

The survey bears out the suspicion that congressmen, including senators, talk just about the same year in and year out, the longer the session, the greater the wordage.

A comparison of the records of the first session of the 82nd Congress and the first session of the 81st Congress tends to confirm this. Both sessions began Jan. 3 and both ended in October within a day of each other.

During each session, members spoke approximately 21 million words, filling approximately 15,000 pages of the official Congressional Record. The cost? Approximately $1,250,000!

Let us dissect the record of the session which just ended. The 96 senators spoke approximately 11,780,000 words, the 435 representatives 9,118,284, for a total wordage of some 20,898,000!

Senator Matthew Neely

• NOW—WHAT DOES A MEMBER OF CONGRESS talk about? A perusal of the Record for the final day of the last session reveals: Senators talked about the Yalta Conference telephone directory, the Green river watershed, health care for dependents of servicemen, the immigration laws, the Missouri Pacific railroad company, Japanese and German steel production, and the estate of Carlos M. Cochran, to name but a few of the subjects.

Representatives talked about schools in critical defense housing areas, the mutual security appropriation, the achievements of the 82nd Congress, the Marine Corps, high prices and the Sabine lake bridge.

It might cause considerable controversy to name the most loquacious member of Congress, who must, of course, be a senator: According to Neely, he is a Republican who used 191 pages of the record the last session making speeches. Neely did not identify him further.

• IN ADDITION TO THE 21 MILLION WORDS spoken during the recent session of Congress, another 10,478,000 words were inserted in the Appendix of the Record by members of both Houses. This brought the total wordage for the session to more than 31 million!

The Appendix is a great congressional institution. Members would be lost without it. When a member of the House or Senate wants to give the impression that he said something in Congress which he did not say, he has it inserted in the Appendix. This is known as an extension of remarks. Sometimes a member says two or three words on the floor to give his remarks authenticity.

The Appendix serves an important function in the life of a congressman. Thousands of copies of his extension of remarks are made up, all prominently displaying the words "Not printed at government expense," and mailed to constituents.

What hikes the cost of the Congressional Record is the fact that what a member says, or does not say, must be printed three times: in the daily record, in the bi-weekly record, and in the permanent bound copies.

At $85 a page it adds up to considerable expense. In a deliberative body such as Congress, many members are understandably loquacious, although there are some who perhaps never open their mouths on the floor of either body during the entire session.

Child Conservation League Members, Husbands Hear Doctor Talk On 'Family'

Advice Given To Mothers

"In the last few years, the concept of family has undergone a radical change."

That is the opinion of Dr. W. Hugh Missildine in an address made to members of Child Conservation League and their husbands following dinner in Presbyterian church social rooms Tuesday evening.

Dr. Missildine, director of children's mental health clinic in Cincinnati and a member of Childrens hospital staff, also said:

"There was a time when the child was seen and not heard. The child was a subject to be trained; not thought of as an individual in his own right. Adults were individualists; the child the neophyte."

"But all that is changing. At one time there was a swing to progressive education; now we are trying to strike a happy medium."

"Today the family is more of a unit, the child and his needs are important; he is thought of as an individual with limitations."

"Children are taught to have consideration for others. We must recognize and consider their needs, but learn to curb their whims, too, for children have no harnessing apparatus. We must learn to fit these whims into family needs so the child will feel secure."

"Although children are limited by convention, ambition, and prejudice and needs and rights of the family, he is an opportunist, seeking ways to have his wishes granted."

The speaker closed his remarks with a word of advice to mothers. He said:

Child Conservation League Members, Husbands Hear Doctor Talk On 'Family'

Advice Given To Mothers

"In the last few years, the concept of family has undergone a radical change."

That is the opinion of Dr. W. Hugh Missildine in an address made to members of Child Conservation League and their husbands following dinner in Presbyterian church social rooms Tuesday evening.

Dr. Missildine, director of children's mental health clinic in Columbus and a member of Children's hospital staff, also said:

"There was a time when the child was seen and not heard. The child was a subject to be trained; not thought of as an individual in his own right. Adults were individualists; the child the neophyte."

"But all that is changing. At one time there was a swing to progressive education; now we are trying to strike a happy medium."

"Today the family is more of a unit, the child and his needs are important; he is thought of as an individual with limitations."

"Children are taught to have consideration for others. We must recognize and consider their needs, but learn to curb their whims, too, for children have no harnessing apparatus. We must learn to fit these whims into family needs so the child will feel secure."

"Although children are limited by convention, ambition, and prejudice and needs and rights of the family, he is an opportunist, seeking ways to have his wishes granted."

The speaker closed his remarks with a word of advice to mothers. He said:

"It is a good idea for mothers to get away from their children occasionally. They usually come back with a new aspect and not quite so tense."

U. S. Must Build Civilian Defense

By MILLARD CALDWELL
U. S. Civil Defense Director

(Editor's Note: This is the tenth of a series of articles on civil defense, based on the booklet "This Is Civil Defense" prepared by the Federal Civil Defense Administration.)

After the explosion of an atomic bomb, the resulting fires could cause more loss of life and property than the blast itself. Therefore, getting ready to fight fires is a big part of the civil defense job.

Atomic bombing would cause great fires in the area of the burst, and start hundreds of small fires in surrounding areas. With the regular fire fighting companies fully occupied by the main fires, people would have to put out these smaller fires on the spot. If they live in target areas they must know how to fight fires at home or at work.

At least one member of your family should be trained in the use of basic fire fighting tools and methods. Because women are at home much of the time, they are urged to learn how to put out fires in case of emergency.

Teaching of householders to fight fires will be carried out by instructors trained by their local fire departments. Auxiliary or reserve firemen will be recruited to back up the regular companies. These volunteers will be trained by local fire companies, using regular equipment.

Your warden or your local civil defense headquarters will tell you where to volunteer for such training.

The biggest police problem in event of enemy attack, would be the control of traffic. Another big problem would be maintaining law and order. These are the most important of the duties which civil defense volunteers would help perform under the Police Service.

AUXILIARY POLICE, which many communities now have to supplement regular police forces in handling parades and crowds on special occasions, will also be used in civil defense work. They will be a part of the local police departments, and under the command of regular police officers, their authority to act being prescribed by local law.

Civil defense will need thousands of volunteers to carry on the duties of the Police Service. You can serve your community by volunteering today.

No matter what kind of disaster strikes your community, much will depend upon good communications. In the face of enemy attack, the Communications Service would be the nerve center of civil defense for it would relay air raid warnings promptly, direct fire, police, rescue warden, medical, engineering, and other services, and keep them in touch with one another.

Without this service, headquarters would not have the information necessary to control situations brought on by disaster.

Thousands of volunteers are needed to man the communications network. Any technical training in radio, television, telegraph, or telephone work will qualify you for this service.

Neither sex nor age is a barrier to volunteering for civil defense. Retired persons with technical training are especially valuable, such as retired policemen and firemen. There are many jobs which women can fill better than men.

Your local civil defense director will tell you what they are.

(The next article will discuss more civil defense services.)

Deadline Near To Enlist After Taking Tests

Sgt. D. W. Bonifant, who is in charge of the local U. S. Army and Air Force recruiting station, has reminded all men who have had their pre-induction physical that Nov. 30 is the deadline for them to enlist in the service of their choice.

Sergeant Bonifant said there are openings in both the Army and Air Force for these men who have received their pre-induction physical and are awaiting their induction notice.

The regular Army and regular Air Force, he declared, offer intelligent young men a wonderful career with good pay and many other advantages such as travel, adventure, technical training, and retirement at an early age on a pension of $130 or more per month.

The local recruiting office is located in the lobby of the VFW Club, 217 North Court street.

The recruiter on duty has full information about the Army and the Air Force.

In some European countries it was the custom to throw fruit instead of rice at weddings.

MY THANKS

To all those who supported me in Tuesday's election.

Medal Of Honor Winner Hurt In Korean Battle

KOREA, Nov. 8—An American sergeant who won the Congressional Medal of Honor in World War II and then volunteered for another war was disclosed today to have been wounded on his first combat patrol in Korea.

Master Sergeant Thomas E. McCall of Lafayette, Ind., now is hospitalized with a severe chest wound suffered when he went to the aid of a fallen comrade.

The 35-year-old McCall—exempt from further combat as are all winners of the nation's highest military award—nevertheless volunteered for duty in Korea.

He had specifically requested assignment to the Fifth Cavalry Regiment to which his brother, Sergeant First Class Shelby McCall, was attached.

McCall won the Medal of Honor on the Rapido river in Italy in 1944 when he killed more than 30 Germans in a charge through a heavy artillery barrage.

11 Cars Pile Up In Freak Mishap On Icy Highway

CLEVELAND, Nov. 8—A freak series of accidents in which eleven cars were damaged late last night on an icy stretch in suburban Bedford injured several persons, including the mayor of Bedford Heights.

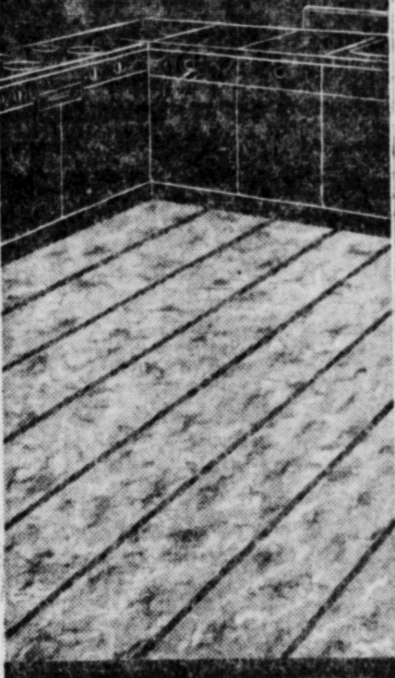

The snow-balling accident started when a car driven by Joseph Senk, 29, of Macedonia skidded over Ward's crossing bridge in Bedford Township, tearing up 100 feet of guard rail.

Flares were put up on the bridge approaches, but the stretch was too icy and the cars piled into each other as each driver tried vainly to stop.

None of the victims was injured seriously and all were released from neighboring hospitals.

Panama, in 1948, authorized one-fourth of her total budget for education.

(Editor's Note: This is the tenth of a series of articles on civil defense, based on the booklet "This Is Civil Defense" prepared by the Federal Civil Defense Administration.)

After the explosion of an atomic bomb, the resulting fires could cause more loss of life and property than the blast itself. Therefore, getting ready to fight fires is a big part of the civil defense job.

Atomic bombing would cause great fires in the area of the burst, and start hundreds of small fires in surrounding areas. With the regular fire fighting companies fully occupied by the main fires, people would have to put out these smaller fires on the spot. If they live in target areas they must know how to fight fires at home or at work.

At least one member of your family should be trained in the use of basic fire fighting tools and methods. Because women are at home much of the time, they are urged to learn how to put out fires in case of emergency.

Teaching of householders to fight fires will be carried out by instructors trained by their local fire departments. Auxiliary or reserve firemen will be recruited to back up the regular companies. These volunteers will be trained by local fire companies, using regular equipment.

Your warden or your local civil defense headquarters will tell you where to volunteer for such training.

The biggest police problem in event of enemy attack, would be the control of traffic. Another big problem would be maintaining law and order. These are the most important of the duties which civil defense volunteers would help perform under the Police Service.

AUXILIARY POLICE, which many communities now have to supplement regular police forces in handling parades and crowds on special occasions, will also be used in civil defense work. They will be a part of the local police departments, and under the command of regular police officers, their authority to act being prescribed by local law.

Civil defense will need thousands of volunteers to carry on the duties of the Police Service. You can serve your community by volunteering today.

No matter what kind of disaster strikes your community, much will depend upon good communications. In the face of enemy attack, the Communications Service would be the nerve center of civil defense for it would relay air raid warnings promptly, direct fire, police, rescue warden, medical, engineering, and other services, and keep them in touch with one another.

Without this service, headquarters would not have the information necessary to control situations brought on by disaster.

Thousands of volunteers are needed to man the communications network. Any technical training in radio, television, telegraph, or telephone work will qualify you for this service.

Neither sex nor age is a barrier to volunteering for civil defense. Retired persons with technical training are especially valuable, such as retired policemen and firemen. There are many jobs which women can fill better than men. Your local civil defense director will tell you what they are.

(The next article will discuss more civil defense services.)

Medal Of Honor Winner Hurt In Korean Battle

KOREA, Nov. 8.—An American sergeant who won the Congressional Medal of Honor in World War II and then volunteered for another war was disclosed today to have been wounded on his first combat patrol in Korea.

Master Sergeant Thomas E. McCall of Lafayette, Ind., now is hospitalized with a severe chest wound suffered when he went to the aid of a fallen comrade.

The 35-year-old McCall — exempt from further combat as are all winners of the nation's highest military award — nevertheless volunteered for duty in Korea.

He had specifically requested assignment to the Fifth Cavalry Regiment to which his brother, Sergeant First Class Shelby McCall, was attached.

McCall won the Medal of Honor or the Rapido river in Italy in 1944 when he killed more than 30 Germans in a charge through a heavy artillery barrage.

11 Cars Pile Up In Freak Mishap On Icy Highway

CLEVELAND, Nov. 8 — A freak series of accidents in which eleven cars were damaged late last night on an icy stretch in suburban Bedford injured several persons, including the mayor of Bedford Heights.

The snow-balling accident started when a car driven by Joseph Senk, 29, of Macedonia skidded over Ward's crossing bridge in Bedford Township, tearing up 100 feet of guard rail.

Flares were put up on the bridge approaches, but the stretch was too icy and the cars piled into each other as each driver tried vainly to stop.

None of the victims was injured seriously and all were released from neighboring hospitals.

Panama, in 1948, authorized one-fourth of her total budget for education.

Deadline Near To Enlist After Taking Tests

Sfc. D. W. Bonifant, who is in charge of the local U. S. Army and Air Force recruiting station, has reminded all men who have had their pre-induction physical that Nov. 30 is the deadline for them to enlist in the service of their choice.

Sergeant Bonifant said there are openings in both the Army and Air Force for these men who have received their pre-induction physical and are awaiting their induction notice.

The regular Army and regular Air Force, he declared, offer intelligent young men a wonderful career with good pay and many other advantages such as travel, adventure, technical training, and retirement at an early age on a pension of $130 or more per month.

The local recruiting office is located in the lobby of the VFW Club, 217 North Court street.

The recruiter on duty has full information about the Army and the Air Force.

In some European countries it was the custom to throw fruit instead of rice at weddings.

Deans Of Women Book Conference

MARIETTA, Nov. 8.—Dr. Paul S. Weaver, president of Lake Erie

College, Painesville, will head the list of speakers at the annual meeting of the Ohio Association of Deans of Women Nov. 9-11 in Marietta.

The association will send most of its 250 deans of women and girls in 40 Ohio colleges and 110 high schools to the meeting.

Other speakers include Mary Drucker of the Ohio department of education; Justina Eich, former dean of women at Capital university and Allette Wennerstrom of Cleveland.

The average life of the guinea pig is four or five years.

'I NOMINATE' Any Dem But Truman

Editor's Note: This is the last of four articles by prominent Republican and Democratic members of Congress discussing the presidential candidate possibilities for next year's election. Today's article presents the views of a Democrat who opposes the re-nomination of President Truman.

By REP. WILLIAM WHEELER
Democrat of Georgia

With all due personal respect for Mr. Truman as an individual, there are many reasons which should preclude his re-nomination in 1952.

Chief of these reasons is that there is not and should never be any such thing in this country as an indispensable man. This is one of the reasons for the establishment of the two-term tradition and for the recent constitutional amendment limiting presidential tenure to two terms.

If my feeling with regard to the two term tradition did not obtain, there are many other cogent reasons for Mr. Truman not being re-nominated by the Democratic Party.

IF THERE EVER was a time in this country when the people should be united it is now while we are faced with the threat of atheistic Communistic imperialism. We cannot successfully combat this threat led by a President who concerns his administration with those measures which result in further division of the American people into various groupings.

Not only has the administration become morally bankrupt but the example set by it has led toward moral bankruptcy among the people who look to it for leadership or example. It is felt that if the president can look with tolerance on immoral and unethical behavior within his own official family, it is then permissible for the average citizen to wink at wrongdoing and crime.

Regardless of the personal attributes of the President, an about-face must be accomplished in the administration of the affairs of this nation if we are to survive as a free nation.

It is my considered conviction that the President has allowed himself to become so deeply enmeshed in the machinations of his ill advised commitments that he cannot possibly lead the country successfully in accomplishing this about face.

He has allowed his administration to become so filled with and its policies so completely directed by speculating, pompous, patronizing, Pendergastian, pandering peddlers of political pelf, that it is now impossible for him to present himself to the people of this country as the honest, moral straight-forward leader the perilous times require.

THE FOLLOWING or the endorsement of policies of expediency in the field of foreign affairs, where issues and courses of action are decided on a day to day basis by the current Truman administration, has left the American people at a loss to understand just what our foreign policy is.

An example of this dangerous policy is the Korean conflict where we first decided to throw down the gauntlet to the forces of Communism and then decided to engage the issue and prosecute it according to rules laid down by the enemy.

After careful consideration of all angles, I am firmly convinced that the Democratic Party should ask the President to step aside at the next convention and then proceed to nominate someone who is not identified with all the things that discredit his administration; a man who will have the courage that Christianity and moral character brings to a man—courage, as it were, to drive the money changers from the temple; a man who will courageously lead this country back to a full emphasis on constitutional government where individuals are allowed to develop to the limit of their capacity unaided by the government and regardless of membership in any particular group.

We have men who fit this pattern within the Democratic Party and it is my hope that such a one may receive the nomination.

PAWNEE LISTED
As Top Variety
Of U.S. Wheat

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8 — Agriculture Department officials say Pawnee, an outstanding wheat variety, has skyrocketed to the top of the wheat farmer's popularity list.

Pawnee wasn't in the million-acre class five years ago, but today it is grown on more than eleven million acres.

Although wheat is one of the oldest food crops, it is still being changed by research and officials find it necessary to alter their list of leading varieties every five years.

The leaders of the newest edition include very few that led in popularity when the survey was first made thirty years ago.

At that time, there were a dozen wheat types that occupied a million acres or more. Today, only Turkey wheat appears among those former favorites.

SOME FARMERS today may not know that Marquis, Fultz, Mediterranean, Fulcaster, Poole and Preston were the big names in wheat a generation or so ago.

Today, these types have almost fallen into disuse—except for the contribution they may make to the new, disease-resistant, upstanding, high-yielding varieties.

In second place, behind the popular Pawnee, is Comanche wheat with almost six million acres. Triumph follows closely in third place.

Neither of the two leaders have ever before been listed among the ranking wheat crops.

It's the same story with Midas, now in fourth place on the list, but never listed before. Midas came up in five years from one-tenth of one per cent to more than 30 per cent of the hard red Spring wheat acreage.

Two wheats that were unknown a decade ago now occupy fifth and sixth place on the government list. These are Thorne, a soft red winter and Thatcher, a hard red Spring wheat.

2 Men Escape Escape-Proof Jail In Miami

MIAMI, Nov. 8—Two prisoners broke out of Miami's "escape proof" jail yesterday and were captured 68 miles away in West Palm Beach before their departure was noticed.

Miami police admitted with no small amount of embarrassment that they did not know that two men were missing until they received a call from West Palm Beach police.

The West Palm Beach officers asked the Miami police if they wanted the men and were told "we already have them."

The pair made escape by knotting mattress covers together and lowering themselves to the next floor. They were picked up in West Palm Beach on a traffic violation. The Miami jail on the 11th floor of City Hall—was said to be escape proof when it was erected. Several successful breaks have been staged.

Miami police admitted with no small amount of embarrassment that they did not know that two men were missing until they received a call from West Palm Beach police.

The West Palm Beach officers asked the Miami police if they wanted the men and were told "we already have them."

The pair made escape by knotting mattress covers together and lowering themselves to the next floor. They were picked up in West

Palm Beach on a traffic violation.

The Miami jail on the 11th floor of City Hall—was said to be escape proof when it was erected. Several successful break-ins have been staged.

Yogi Berra Gets 'MVP' Award In AL

Garver, Reynolds Close In Voting

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—Catcher Yogi Berra of the World Champion Yankees, a comic character who is always good for a few surprises, became the honorable recipient of one today when he was named the American League's Most Valuable Player for 1951.

The genial little backstop, who ended the season in a dismal batting slump, nosed out 20-game winner Ned Garver of the last place Browns in the voting by a 24-man committee of the Baseball Writers' Association.

Berra received a total of 184 points to Garver's 157. Yogi's bat-tery-mate, double no-hit Allie Reynolds, came in third with 125 points.

Berra, Garver and Reynolds each received six first place votes but the fireplug catcher did better in second place selections, getting five ballots to two each for Garver and Reynolds. No player was named on all 24 ballots.

FIRST PLACE selection counted fourteen points with nine awarded for second, eight for third and so on down the list to one point for a tenth place choice.

Selection of Berra, the first catcher to be designed as MVP in the league since Mickey Cochrane in 1934, made it a banner year for the hard-working receivers. Brooklyn's Roy Campanella was chosen as the National League's most valuable.

It is the first time in history that two catchers have won the award in the same year.

Despite his late season batting swoon, baseball's No. 1 comic book fancier managed to hit .294 in 141 games. He batted in 91 runs and hit 27 homers.

But Yogi's value to the Yankees extended beyond his batting prowess. The 26-year-old New Jersey suit salesman, who made his entrance to baseball via the St. Louis sandlot, has developed into one of the game's best catchers. The naive little man is what they call "crazy like a fox" when it comes to handling pitchers.

When Berra first came to the Yankees in 1947 he was an awkward catcher-outfielder with a wayward arm. Under the guidance of Bill Dickey, Yogi has been transformed into the ranking catcher in the league.

County League Begins Friday With 4 Tilts

Pickaway County's 1951-52 basketball league will get underway Friday with four top-notch county loop tests on tap.

Although several county teams have opened their seasons the games they played were only warmups for Friday's league opener.

Slated to meet in the first full round of league play are Ashville Broncos at the home of Jackson's Wildcats; Salt Creek's Warriors at the home of Atlanta's Red Raiders; Pickaway's Pirates at the home of Scioto's Buffalos; and William's Deers at the home of Walnut's Tigers.

Only other contest planned for the evening, a non-loop encounter, will be Clarksburg at New Holland. All of the games will be preceded by reserve contests, while some may have junior ball games as preliminary.

Schedule of games for next Tuesday for the county league schools calls for Darby to play host to Madison Rural; Jackson to travel to Stoutsville; Monroe to travel to Midway; and Pickaway to travel to Bloomington.

Tar Heel, Solicitor Going On Auction At Harrisburg

HARRISBURG, Pa., Nov. 8.—Tar Heel and Solicitor, world champion three-year-old harness horses, are slated to go on the auction block today with prospects of bringing record prices.

The two pacers, consigned as part of the W. N. Reynolds estate dispersal at the 13th annual standardbred horse sale at Harrisburg, were clocked in world record times early this month at Delaware, O.

Top price at yesterday's trading was $22,000 paid by Thomas Murphy of New York, a retired trainer, for Lavender Hanover, offspring of Hoot Mon, former Hambletonian winner. Mrs. W. C. Harris of Massapequa, L. I., paid $21,000 for a pacing colt, Stanton Hall.

A total of 179 horses were sold yesterday for $33,100, bringing the total so far this week to 483 horses selling for $630,425.

The newly-organized Standardbred Owner's Association last night elected Elbridge T. Gerry of Old Westbury, N. Y., as president.

Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., lies 283 miles further south than Cairo, Egypt.

3 Old Men: Weather, Football, Upset May Bring Weekend Havoc

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—When Old Man Weather comes to call on Old Man Football, he usually brings Old Man Upset with him. Looks like college gridirons are in for another elderly weekend.

Snow, rain, high winds and a handful of dutifully recorded earthquakes have been raising their havoc the last week or so, and they seem unwilling to give up.

Thus last Saturday's strange doings, which resulted in such enterprising final scores as 3 to 2, may find themselves repeated.

This may bode ill for such undefeated greats as Michigan State, Princeton and Illinois. The Spartans have enough on their hands in the presence of Frank Leahy's hungry Notre Dame club, without having to deal with the blizzards that been raging over East Lansing.

PRINCETON, undefeated through 19 straight contests, has been hearing disturbing reports of the way Harvard's been coming along. Ordinarily, such reports wouldn't bother the Tigers; a nice soggy field may bother them plenty.

As for Rose Bowl-conscious Illinois, cold weather and Iowa are on tap for the weekend. The combination can prove tricky.

All this flies in the face of the fact that bad conditions hamper one team just as much as they hamper another. But it is true that teams are rated on form, and freak weather knocks form for a loop.

Three major schools — Maryland, Tennessee and Stanford — are joined with Michigan State, Princeton and Illinois as those still undefeated.

Stanford's job this weekend is to

Cincy Promoter Offers $100,000 For Title Bout

CINCINNATI, Nov. 8.—Promoter Sam Becker today wants a heavy-weight title fight in Cincinnati and is prepared to guarantee $100,000 in the first move towards bringing it here.

Becker, a clothing manufacturer and promoter who has been out of the boxing picture lately, offered Champion Jersey Joe Walcott at least $100,000 to fight in Cincinnati next February.

He would match the champion against the winner of Tuesday night's fight in Cincinnati between Bob Baker of Pittsburgh, who has won 25 consecutive bouts, and Kid Rivera of Chicago.

Becker said he will not only guarantee Walcott $100,000, or 45 percent of the gate, but also will turn over that much of the television and radio rights.

The winner of the Baker-Rivera fight, he believes, "will go along with me for a shot at the title."

Yackey Holding Scoring Title

DELAWARE, Nov. 8.—Paul Yackey, Heidelberg college half-back from Dover, holds the season's national individual scoring record today with 19 touchdowns and 114 points in seven games.

Twelve of Yackey's touchdowns have come on rushing plays and seven on forward passes. His net rushing gains in 148 plays to date total 957 yards, an average of some six-and-a-half yards per try, and he has caught 11 passes for a total gain of 228 yards or some 20 yards per pass.

Yackey, a junior this year, earned All-Ohio and Little All-America honors last year in his first varsity season.

A South American type of water lily has leaves so broad and firm they will bear the weight of a child.

Sokolsky's These Days

President Truman made the error on June 25 of accepting Malik's truce proposal for Korea. He leaped into this picture without even pursuing the normal steps toward a truce. The result was that during the early stages of the Kaesong negotiations, the impression prevailed, particularly in Asia, that the United States was pleading with North Korea and Soviet China for an armistice.

Impetuosity commands a price, even if the intention is to find a road to peace and to save human life. The present contest between Truman and Churchill to find a formula for peace with Stalin, while virtuous in intent, will strengthen

Stalin, weaken Eisenhower's efforts to build NATO and may not achieve a better peace than we now have. The Russians favor peace, too. But it is a victor's peace they want. Their program is the present status quo from which they can consolidate their position and proceed further. In fact, peace can do more for Russia than a great victory in war. For in the achievement of such a victory by war, Russia would have to destroy the factories and mills and machines that can supply her with needed goods, whereas peace with Churchill will be a tradesman's peace, a buyers' and-sellers' peace.

Eisenhower's difficulty is that which every soldier has to face in dealing with politicians who need s'gans for reelection. Truman removed Gen. Douglas MacArthur in the hope that that act would end the Korean war. He is now dithering with Eisenhower's NATO to compete with Churchill in presenting a peace program to Stalin.

About 500 Out For Mat Show In Coliseum

About 500 local wrestling fans were on hand Wednesday night in Pickaway Fairgrounds Coliseum for three wrestling bouts sponsored by the Circleville Lions Club.

In the first match of the evening, Whitey Walberg met Bobby Watts as both contestants battled to a draw as the 30-minute time limit ran out.

Watts was substituting during the match for Pancho Valentino. Lion officials said Valentino was unavailable for the contest because immigration authorities had shipped him back to Mexico.

The second match, pitting Big Bill Miller against Francois Miquet, provided the fans with their biggest thrills of the evening. Miller won the tussle with two-of-three fall wins in 37 minutes.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 8—Promoter Sam Becker today wants a heavyweight title fight in Cincinnati and is prepared to guarantee $100,000 in the first move towards bringing it here.

Becker, a clothing manufacturer and promoter who has been out of the boxing picture lately, offered Champion Jersey Joe Walcott at least $100,000 to fight in Cincinnati next February.

He would match the champion against the winner of Tuesday night's fight in Cincinnati between Bob Baker of Pittsburgh, who has won 25 consecutive bouts, and Kid Rivera of Chicago.

Becker said he will not only guarantee Walcott $100,000, or 45 percent of the gate, but also will turn over that much of the television and radio rights.

The winner of the Baker-Rivera fight, he believes, "will go along with me for a shot at the title."

Yackey Holding Scoring Title

DELAWARE, Nov. 8—Paul Yackey, Heidelberg college half-back from Dover, holds the season's national individual scoring record today with 19 touchdowns and 114 points in seven games.

Twelve of Yackey's touchdowns have come on rushing plays and seven on forward passes. His net rushing gains in 148 plays to date total 957 yards, an average of some six-and-a-half yards per try, and he has caught 11 passes for a total gain of 228 yards or some 20 yards per pass.

Yackey, a junior this year, earned All-Ohio and Little All-America honors last year in his first varsity season.

President Truman made the error on June 25 of accepting Malik's truce proposal for Korea. He leaped into this picture without even pursuing the normal steps toward a truce. The result was that during the early stages of the Kaesong negotiations, the impression prevailed, particularly in Asia, that the United States was pleading with North Korea and Soviet China for an armistice.

Impetuously commands a price, even if the intention is to find a road to peace and to save human life. The present contest between Truman and Churchill to find a formula for peace with Stalin, while virtuous in intent, will strengthen

Room and Board By Gene Ahern

Stalin, weaken Eisenhower's efforts to build NATO and may not achieve a better peace than we now have. The Russians favor peace, too. But it is a victor's peace they want. Their program is the present status quo from which they can consolidate their position and proceed further. In fact, peace can do more for Russia than a great victory in war. For in the achievement of such a victory by war, Russia would have to destroy the factories and mills and machines that can supply her with needed goods, whereas peace with Churchill will be a tradesman's peace, a buyers' and-sellers' peace.

Pickaway County Running Behind In Defense Bond Sales

61.4 Pct. Of Quota Recorded

Only 5 Days Left During Campaign

Pickaway County defense bond sales in the current bond drive are at 61.4 per cent of quota with only five days remaining in which sales can be credited to the drive.

Thirty-one counties are over the top and 11 additional counties have reached the 90 per cent mark.

Judge William D. Radcliff, county bond sales chairman, pointed out that some sales made in the county were not received by the Federal Reserve in time for recording in the latest Federal Reserve report to the Savings Bonds Division for Ohio.

He said that these sales will be included in the next and last weekly report and that any sales made in time to be processed by the Federal Reserve by November 13 will be issued in time for announcement Nov. 15 and the summary report will be announced as soon afterward as the final figures are compiled.

"It is important to us that we make our purchases early enough to receive credit for them during the drive," the county bond officer said. "Many counties have made their quota and we want to be among those when the drive is over."

"IT IS important that we do not wait until the last minute because our bond sales must be forwarded from the banks, post offices and company issuing agents to the Federal Reserve in time for processing."

He also made an urgent request that all issuing agents in the county make a special effort to get their reports in before the 13th.

Of Ohio's 88 counties Adams, with heavy sales during the last week was first, having sold nearly three times its quota and attaining a percentage of 298.5.

The ranking of the first ten in the state was: Adams, Pike, Harrison, Wyandot, Williams, Noble, Paulding, Fulton, Allen and Summit.

Summit County (Akron) ranking in tenth place in the entire state, led the eight major metropolitan counties with 142.8 per cent and during the week of October 22-26, the most recent report issued, sold $786,562 in Series E Bonds.

Among the eight major metropolitan counties Mahoning, Montgomery, Cuyahoga and Lucas have also attained their quotas.

Tavern Drink Prices To Hold

COLUMBUS, Nov. 8—Although it may cost you more for your favorite drink at home, it probably will not cost you any more in your favorite tavern.

That was the prediction of Frank J. Massaro, district price executive in the Columbus Office of Price Stabilization.

Massaro said that, despite higher excise taxes added to whisky sold in state stores, the price of whisky by the drink is governed by OPS restaurant provisions.

He pointed out the new tax will result in an increase to the taverns of less than one cent per drink.

Sleep-Wooing Records Listed Under Food Law

NEW YORK, Nov. 8—The United States circuit court of appeals has ruled that phonograph records designed to woo sleep come under the provisions of the Federal Pure Food and Drug Act.

The court based its ruling on the fact that sleep is a body function.

It sent back to the eastern district court for retrial a civil action charging that distribution of the records of Hypnotist Ralph Slater violated the law because they were misbranded.

The district court originally threw out the suit. The circuit court held yesterday that the labeling was misleading because Slater's ability to induce sleep was called "uncanny" and "phenomenal."

Public's Anger At Corruption Seen In Election

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8 — Sharp public determination to end corruption in government and Republican victories in all four congressional battles stand out today as highlights of Tuesday's elections.

The corruption issue swept Rudolph Halley, former chief counsel for the Senate crime-probing committee, into office as president of the New York City council. Halley ran as an independent in a five-way race. His chief opposition came from Tammany Hall.

In Philadelphia, the voters tossed out a Republican city administration tagged with the "corruption" label, and elected a Democrat mayor for the first time in 68 years.

Boston's voters spurned once powerful ex-mayor James M. Curley, who has served time in a federal prison, and retained John B. Hynes as the city's chief executive.

An intense, nationwide drive to wipe out official corruption on the local level was evident in an astonishing upset of mayors. In New York alone, more than 20 mayoralties changed hands.

GOP National Chairman G. G. George Gabrielson declared: "It was more than a warning to President Truman to clear house in his corrupt administration. The voters demonstrated that they want a change in 1952."

Newark Murder Jury To Hear New Witness

NEWARK, Nov. 8—One more witness is expected to be called today when the state resumes its case in the first degree murder trial of Joanne Thomas of Newark in the fatal shooting of her sweetheart, Frank Rizzo last September.

The victim's brother, whose fruit store the shooting occurred, testified yesterday that Miss Thomas came into the store while Frank was weighing grapes, called "Frank" and shot him four times.

Sheriff William McElroy, who arrived at the scene of the shooting shortly after it happened, said the victim recognized him and said Miss Thomas had shot him.

McElroy testified that Rizzo also told him "I'll talk later," but died in the hospital before fulfilling his promise.

Police Chief Arthur Jones told the jury that the gun used to kill Rizzo held nine bullets and that five had been fired. He said Miss Thomas fired one before going to the store.

Prosecutor Forrest Ashcraft, who read a confession reportedly made by the defendant, said the girl was "unhappy in love" and that she originally planned to kill herself but decided later to "kill Frank, too."

PUCO Denies Hike For Express

COLUMBUS, Nov. 8—The Public Utilities Commission of Ohio has denied a request by Railway Express to make an intrastate price hike effective Nov. 15.

The Interstate Commerce Commission already has approved a Railway Express increase on interstate rates Nov. 15 and intrastate rates Dec. 5.

The Ohio commission, however, could see no emergency situation and ruled that both increases will go into effect as set by the ICC and no earlier.

Under the increases, first class shipments will increase 30 cents and COD charges will be hiked 25 cents.
